“ Dear Clyde, Lamb of GOD
You lost your way in the Forest of life
which has so many paths
The one you chose
was deep in shadow
fraught with suffering

Too weary to lift yourself
out of the darkness
too weary to raise your eyes and see the Light
beckoning you to choose another way,
all the good and wonderful parts of you lay on the dark forest floor being consumed piece by piece

Until at last your Spirit rose to the Light making its way to the Glorious Meadow of Heaven to be with your TRUE FATHER There all the good and wonderful parts of you in Joy play your music again and the Angels sing

PEACE IN HEAVEN
Dear, Dear Clyde
YOU ARE LOVED

“ Clyde: you will be sorely missed. Whenever I came down to stay with Aunt Alice I always made it a point to visit your parents. I'll always remember my talks with you and your parents. You were a gentle soft-spoken big guy. You had your own way of looking at things and would explain your philosophy on them. You thought differently than some but you got your viewpoint across and I think you probably changed some minds. And also how you loved to watch the Patriots and Red Sox! I didn't know you were into music as much as you were, but I'm glad you were. Music soothes the soul. Like your Aunt Joan I still have my art piece also. now it will become even more treasured. Rest In Peace, Clyde, and know tht you'll always be loved. Love Aunt Fran “ Clyde was my oldest friend, I met him when I was 6 he was 5 or 4 and half. I had moved to Willington from New Haven and the Halls took me into their family, they taught me the ways of country life. I spent Christmas morning with Clyde every year- I still remember when Clyde, John and Billy got the Daisey BB gun and Clyde Senior told us not to shoot it without supervision. But we didn't listen. I spent my entire childhood running around in the woods with Clyde after school. In the swamp - hunting frogs and any other poor creature that found itself in our sights. We would get hurt and Jean would be there to patch us up and send us back on another adventure. Back to see if we could see the porcupine that lived under the rock ledge, or the brook trout that swam in the deep hole, turning rocks over looking for worms we found salamanders sometimes the big spotted ones. It was a beautiful friendship brought on by being neighbors close in age and in the middle of a rural existence. We learned to ride bikes together- sled, and eat apples not in that order. We played catch for ever eating apples to our stomach would burst. Clyde showed me how to take a rotten apple and throw it up into the tree to get 1/2 a dozen un worm infested ones to fall from the old trees that surrounded his house. We were great friends we never fought or really even disagreed about anything. Life was just starting and everything was new and exciting. Now 50 years later he is gone and miss him dearly. There are few people in our lives who leave a message on you phone that say's "I love you." This is what I heard less then a month ago. Clyde was full of it. Rest in peace I look forward to playing music with you again when we meet in the next reincarnation, hopefully as birds we can sing and fly free.

“ I am deeply saddened by my od friend's passing. My condolences to Clydes family and friends.

I had the priveledge of living with Clyde on both coasts. Clyde was a passionate soul whom loved to philosphize about many subjects.

He was avid swimmer and athlete in his youth and we got to play some basketball and racketball together out in California.

Even when we lived 3,000 miles away from each other we seemed to always connect on some sort of musical level, he would send me personally burned CD's of Native American music, turning me on to new sounds.

When we talked our conversation usually consisted of what new music we were listening to. Throughout my witnessing of part of Clyde's life, I noticed no matter what it was he approached, he always approached it with his unique spin and handling. I have some old comedy tapes we made out here in CA during his brief 10 months out here, I have to find and transfer to digital and see if there's any interesting treasures. I will miss Clyde and I know he is in a better place with no pain. Sleep well my dear friend we shall meet again one day.
